A warm welcome from our dedicated team, to your New Forest Marque 2020 Local Produce Guide.

We hope you enjoy browsing through it, and are inspired by the quality and diversity of wonderful produce and craft available right here on our doorstep.

The New Forest Marque was set up in 2004 to support our commoners and smallholders. It has grown and evolved to represent many areas of New Forest business, including food and drink; hospitality and retail; craft, art, trees and education. The Marque’s reputation as the Sign of True Local Produce has also spread rapidly. You’ll know that anything with the distinctive logo is grown, reared, brewed, produced or processed here in the New Forest.

But we’re more than just a logo. We help preserve traditional farming practices, rural skills and traditions which for centuries have shaped the distinctive Forest landscape and ecosystem.

Our vibrant rural economy is reflected in the ever-increasing New Forest Marque membership – which currently stands at 160 producers and makers. Within these pages you’ll find local farmers and growers, as well as artisan producers, retailers and hospitality outlets who proudly use locally-sourced goods. You’ll also find crafters and artists who draw inspiration from our unique and beautiful environment.

How to use the Guide

To help you find what you’re looking for with ease, the 2020 New Forest Marque Local Produce Guide is divided into three sections, each with sub-categories:

food and drink

craft, art, trees
and education

retail and hospitality

And if you know exactly who you’re looking for, you’ll also find all our members listed alphabetically in the index at the back of the Guide on pages 36 to 38.

But where can I buy stuff?!

Buttons by each member’s listing indicate whether produce and products are available:

线上, 批发, and/or • at a retail outlet, or direct from the producer.

You can link to all our members’ websites at www.newforestmarque.co.uk and follow us on social media for up-to-date news about us and our amazing members.

You can help bees by buying local honey, sponsoring a hive, joining a wildlife trust, avoiding pesticides, planting a bee-friendly garden and building bee hotels.

NFNPA YEAR OF GREEN ACTION

Grants for schools’ bee garden planting projects

As part of the New Forest National Park Authority’s Year of Green Action, and the 70th anniversary of National Parks; schools and youth groups across the National Park have planted their own wildlife-friendly gardens to help encourage bees and other pollinating insects. Areas have been transformed with new wildflower meadows and native hedgerows as well as bug hotels, raised beds, and composting areas. This is a great way to support the local bee and insect population (and New Forest producers!) while also helping children to learn all about the natural environment. Well done to all those involved! *

SUPPORTED BY
NEW FOREST NATIONAL PARK

For 2020, we’re featuring beautiful, rich golden honey on our cover. We’re celebrating the hard-working bees who play such a vital role in supporting our ecosystem and are our gardeners’ and producers’ best friends.

Bees are important pollinators for all kinds of plants, including fruits and vegetables. They pollinate 70% of the 100 crop species that feed 90% of the world, as well as plants which other animals feed on, so they’re vital to our food chain.

Here in the New Forest, milder weather means that the beekeeping season is longer and more productive than in many other parts of the country. Our local bees have a rich variety of trees and flowers to forage, including heather, which is claimed by many to produce the best tasting honey!

Honey has been used as a sweetener for centuries, it’s great for dolloping into cakes and drizzling onto hams or breakfast toast. But it isn’t the only by-product of our bees: the qualities of beeswax make it ideal for making candles, polishing wood or preserving food, and beeswax wraps are becoming a popular alternative to plastic food wrapping. Some of our Marque members add it to their ranges of artisan lip balms, hand creams and moisturisers.

Sadly, many species of bees are on the brink of extinction in parts of the UK. Climate change, habitat loss, pollution and disease are threatening these much-needed pollinators. It’s important to support our natural world and create a balance for everything living in the Forest.

You can help bees by buying local honey, sponsoring a hive, joining a wildlife trust, avoiding pesticides, planting a bee-friendly garden and building bee hotels.

But where can I buy stuff?

newforestmarque.co.uk the sign of true local produce
The growing number of people choosing New Forest Marque produce reflects the many benefits of buying local, seasonal and sustainable produce.

It can help reduce waste, support communities and boost the local economy. And as the time from field to fork is shorter, our plates are filled with tastier, fresher, more nutritious food. Our producers and wholesalers offer a huge range of food and drink to suit all tastes.

Local roots
Whether it’s pannage pork from a traditional commoning operation, or super-sweet soft fruits from a larger grower, every animal labelled with the New Forest Marque logo has spent at least half of its life in the New Forest, and every plant three quarters of its life. Fish and seafood are caught in the area by an authorised person, while drinks are not only brewed here but contain at least 25% of ingredients sourced from the Forest.

New Forest Marque bakers, makers, preservers and cooks are committed to using raw ingredients from within the local area wherever possible – no less than 25% to get the Marque seal of approval.

We’re sure that’s whetted your appetite! Read on for more delicious inspiration.

What’s not to love about our beautiful New Forest landscape? For centuries it has inspired artists and crafters, woodworkers and coppicers – and in 2020 the inspiration keeps flowing!

A third of our members fall into this section, which also includes education providers, children’s centres, charities (such as Wildlife Trusts) and community organisations – all with the New Forest at their heart.

Education and engagement play a huge part in the Forest’s past, present and future, and what more stunning backdrop than our trees and open spaces?

Art at our heart

These spaces are where animals are reared in harmony with the landscape – animals such as sheep and alpacas whose coats are turned into beautiful pieces by local weavers and knitters.

Not forgetting bees, whose keepers are also busy creating produce from honey and beeswax (read more on pages 18 and 19), while photographers and artists love to share the visual bounty.

Other hand-made products showing traditional artisan skills include soaps and skin care products. Plus of course, all the beautiful wooden items such as bowls, musical instruments and furniture from trees right here in the Forest.

For an item to earn the New Forest Marque stamp, it must not only be made in the Marque area, but also be produced from a minimum of 25% locally sourced raw materials.

If you’re looking for a unique gift, look no further, (but the chances are you’ll want to keep it yourself!) from woodwork to silver sculpture, and photos to original art works.

JOIN THE MARQUE

Are you up to the Marque? We’d love to hear from you if you’d like to join the scheme.

For farmers or growers
Membership is open to everyone based in the New Forest whose animals spend at least 50% of their growing life in the New Forest, and whose plants spend at least 75% of their growing life here.

For producers, crafters and makers
You must be based in the New Forest, and source at least 25% of your raw ingredients from New Forest suppliers.

For hospitality providers and retailers
If you’re a campsite, hotel, restaurant, bar, gift shop, garden centre or anything in between, simply regularly stocking a minimum of three New Forest Marque producers’ goods qualifies you for New Forest Marque membership in your own right.

Want to know more?
Visit www.newforestmarque.co.uk and register your interest through our online form or give us a call on 01590 646648, or email hello@newforestmarque.co.uk

Membership by association!
Associate Membership is available to local businesses who recognise the importance of the New Forest Marque and want to support a vibrant, local, rural economy but do not meet the criteria for Marque Membership.

We are hugely grateful to our Associate Members who support the work we and all our members do:

- Harrow Wood Farm
- Herbert Williams
